THE BURIAL OF MOSES.

By Nebo's lonely mountain,
On this side Jordan's wave,
In a vale in the land of Moab,
There lies a lonely grave;
And no man dug the sepulchre,
And no man saw it e'er;
For the angel of God upturned the sod,
And laid the dead man there.

That was the grandest funeral
That ever passed on earth;
But no man heard the tramping,
Or saw the train go forth.
Noiselessly as the daylight
Comes when the night is done,
And the crimson streak on ocean's cheek
Grows into the great sun:

Noiselessly as the spring-time
Her crown of verdure weaves,
And all the trees on all the hills
Open their thousand leaves—
So, without sound of music,
Or voice of them that wept,
Silently down from the mountain's crown
The great procession swept.

Perchance the bald old eagle
On gray Bethpeor's height,
Out from his rocky eyrie
Looked on the wondrous sight;
Perchance the lion, stalking,
Still shuns that hallowed spot;
For beast and bird have seen and heard
That which men knoweth not.

But when the warrior dieth,
His comrades in the war,
With arms reversed and muffled drum,
Follow the funeral car;
They show the banners taken,
They tell his battles won,
And after him lead his masterless steed,
While peals the minute gun.

Amid the noblest of the land
Men lay the sage to rest,
And give the bard an honored place,
With costly marble dress,
In the great minster-transept,
Where lights like glory fall,
And the choir sings and the organ rings
Along the emblazoned wall.

This was the bravest warrior
That ever buckled sword;
This the most gifted poet
That ever breathed a word;
And never earth's philosopher
Traced with his golden pen,
On the deathless page, truth half so sage
As he wrote down for men.

And had he not high honor?
The hill side for his pall,
To be in state while angels wait,
With stars for tapers tall;
And the dark rock-pines, like tossing plumes,
Over his head waves,
And God's own hand, in that lonely land,
To lay him in the grave!

In that deep grave without a name,
Whence his uncoffined clay
Shall break again, (most wondrous thought!)
Before the judgment day,
And stand with glory wrapped around
On the hills he never trod,
And speak of the strife that won our life
With the Incarnate Son of God!

O lonely tomb in Moab's land!
O, dark Bethpeor hill!
Speak to these curious hearts of ours;
And teach them to be still,
God hath His mysteries of grace—
Ways that we cannot tell;
He hides them deep, like the secret sleep
Of him He loved so well.

The Masonic Password.

Curiosity and timidity are the two important traits in the character of Ralph Sloogey. The former quality, some years ago, made him desirous of learning the secret of the Masonic Fraternity; but as he had heard that hot gridirons and pugnacious goats with sharp horns are made use of during the ceremony of initiation, Ralph's timidity warned him that, as he was not copper-bottomed, he should first strive to ascertain, if possible, whether buck-goats and red hot spears and gridirons formed indispensable adjuncts in the mysterious ordeal of Masonry. To satisfy himself on this point, he endeavored to "pump" an intimate personal friend, Jacob Sleeton, whom he knew to be a Mason.

"Now, Jacob," said he, during a conversation on the mysterious subject, "I would like to become a member of the fraternity; but, for doing so, I think you ought to tell me something about them. Do they really brand you with a hot gridiron? and if so on what part of the body?

Like all Masons, when such questions were asked, Jacob would smile, and say, "After you shall have taken the three first degrees, you will know all about it. I can't answer your interrogations."

For a long time Ralph tried to worm out something concerning the fraternity; but in vain. On every possible opportunity he would renew the attempt, until, at last, Jacob became offended at Ralph's persistency, and determined to punish him.

Early one morning as Ralph and Jacob were hurrying down Grand street to their respective places of business, the former renewed inquiries.

"I'd give fifty dollars if I knew the signs and password. If you tell me about the password and grip, I'll promise never to ask you another question in regard to the secrets of Masonry.—Come, now, Jacob—you've known me since I was a boy, and you ought to be aware that if I am a little curious I never blab. Will you tell me? Surely you don't doubt your old schoolfellow? Out with the password, and I promise you that I'll be as mum as a mouse."

Were it not for the sake of old friendship, Jacob would have long before put an end to such impertinent queries; but having failed to do so the inquisitive Ralph imagined that he would at last be successful in "pumping" his Masonic friend.

When Ralph had completed his last sentence, which was spoken in a loud tone, Jacob turned his head, thinking that the words might have been overheard by a gentleman who happened to be walking behind them.

This gentleman proved to be a Mr. Hinslow, who a few weeks before had been dismissed from his position as keeper in the B——— Hospital charged with stealing spoons. Although personally unacquainted with Mr. Hinslow, Jacob knew him by sight; he had been pointed out to him by a member of the Common Council, of which body Jacob was also at that time a member.

The charges against Mr. Hinslow had not yet been proved; but a committee of the Common Council was to enquire into the case at an early day, and Jacob had been appointed a member of that committee.

The last question propounded by Ralph angered Jacob, and as he turned his eyes and beheld the man who had stolen the spoons, an idea immediately entered his mind. He conceived an admirable plan for punishing Ralph, and resolved to instantly put it in execution.

"If I tell you the password," said Jacob, purposely slackening his pace to allow Mr. Hinslow to pass before them, "if I tell you the Masonic password, you promise never to divulge it—not even to a brother?"

"Never!" exclaimed Ralph, exulting, thinking that at last his curiosity was to be satisfied.

"Upon your soul, your swear it?"

"Upon my soul, I swear it!" responded Ralph, as he put his hand to his face and scratched his nose to hide a smile.

By this time Mr. Hinslow had passed on before them, leaving Ralph and Jacob about three yards behind.

"You'll never utter it, in the hearing of man, woman or beast?" asked Jacob.

"By the great God, I solemnly swear!"

"I think that I can trust you. Well, Ralph, I am about to make known to you one of the great secrets of Masonry. When you wish to form the acquaintance of a Mason, all you have to do is to whisper in his ear the mysterious password. That password is—spoons!"

"Spoons! O that be—!" ejaculated Ralph, as a smile on his face was displaced by a frown.

"I tell you truly—the Masonic password is 'spoons.'"

"Spoons! Ha! ha! ha!" and Ralph made a feeble attempt to laugh. "Spoons! that's a h—l of a password! You must think I'm a confounded fool."

"I'm in earnest, Ralph. When Masons get into difficulty, and need assistance, they roar out the word spoons three times. Were you to say 'spoons' three times, even here, on the public street, and a Mason should hear you, he would immediately rush to your assistance, thinking that you needed it."

Ralph did not believe him; and to show that he could not be so easily gulled, he roared out at the top of his voice—

"Spoons! Spoons! Spoons!"

Ere the second syllable had passed his mouth, Mr. Hinslow turned round and faced Ralph.

"You said 'spoons' did you? Take that, and that!" As he spoke, Hinslow struck Ralph between the eyes, and then under the ear, the second blow lifting the inquisitive man off his feet, so that he staggered and fell to the pavement, completely stunned.

"I'll give you spoons!" roared the excited Hinslow, as he advanced and repeatedly kicked the prostrate man.

As Ralph made no effort to rise, the enraged Hinslow soon tired of kicking him, and slowly passed on, occasionally looking behind to see if Ralph were following to obtain satisfaction.

Ralph did not require satisfaction, thinking he might get too much of it—so he prudently postponed returning to consciousness until his enemy had disappeared.

As he rose to his feet he said to Jacob, in a subdued tone, "Why did that man strike me?"

You uttered the Masonic password, but could not respond to the countersign. He is a Mason; and, as he is solemnly bound to do, immediately answered the password by making the countersign with his hand. You were unable to answer his countersign, and for that reason he knew you to be a clandestine Mason—a man who had learned the secrets in an improper way. Therefore, it was his duty to chastise you. Your life may be forfeited for that indiscretion."

"My life! By the great Jehovah, I thought you were only humbugging me when you said that spoons was the password."

"Sh-h-h! Beware!" said Jacob, putting his hand to Ralph's mouth. "Never utter that word again. Masons are ubiquitous, and you might lose your life. As it is, you are in danger; for all the lodges in the city will be immediately convoked to adopt measures that may discover who has betrayed them. My life, as well as yours, is in jeopardy. Promise me that you will never again utter the password."

"And so spoons is the password?" Ralph was at last convinced that his old friend had been telling the truth." "Well, may I be broiled on a Masonic gridiron, and turned over with a red-hot trowel, if ever I halloo spoons again!"

Ralph has most religiously kept his word.—Should he need a spoon while at table, he now asks his wife for a "sugar shovel," fearing that if he mentioned the proper name of the article, some pugnacious member of the mystic brotherhood might respond to the Masonic password.

OBJECTION 1.

I'M TOO POOR; I CAN'T AFFORD IT.

ANSWER.

If you are too poor to save less than half a dollar per week, at from 30 to 35 years of age, or proportionately at other ages, and find it so difficult to do so—should you be taken away by death, how bitterly poverty will strike home to your widow and children, or those dependent on you! Is it not worth a struggle to avoid this, and give them at least $1,000 by paying so small a sum? It costs just $2,00 per month to insure $1,000 at the age of 32 years.

OBJECTION 2.

I've talked to several of my friends, and they all advise me to have nothing to do with it.

ANSWER.

Will your friends undertake to provide for those you leave behind, in case you do not live long enough to save money? Ask them, and be guided by their answer.

OBJECTION 3.

I can't make up my mind; call again.

ANSWER.

Your other objections have been answered. I appeal to your own common sense to answer this for yourself, aided by

THREE PRACTICAL REFLECTIONS.

FIRST.—Nothing is so uncertain as Life.

SECOND.—No provision is perfect that is contingent upon the duration of your Life, which is not immediate.

THIRD.—The only immediate provision is that provided by Life Insurance.

The Fall Session of this Institution closed 23rd. day of December. The Spring Session opened the 1st. Wednesday in January, and will continue 20 weeks.

The success of this school has been without a parallel. A new building has just been completed, by which a large additional number can be accommodated. We are determined to make our pupils as comfortable as they can be made anywhere, and to afford them all the advantage for a thorough and extensive education, that can be found at any First class Female College, North or south.

The location is a most delightful one. The Mineral Water is too well known to the whole country to need a remark. Even invalid young ladies may secure a thorough education, and at the same time the restoration of their health. Reference is made to every intelligent Physician in the State, as well as to the hundreds who have found relief here.

The young ladies all worship in the College Chapel, and hence no extra clothing is required. In the single item of dress parents can save 25 per cent. of the entire expense incurred by sending to Boarding Schools located in cities or villages. This Institution is certainly one of the cheapest and most easy of access in the Southern States. Besides, it offers the most superior advantages in every respect.

IN WHICH YOU ARE INTERESTED.

I PROPOSE for the protection of the citizens of Raleigh and surrounding country, against the imposition of those so-called Cost Stores, to furnish each and every person, the New York Cost of any goods they may want to buy; by this means they can tell whether they are buying goods at Cost or paying a profit on them.

Call before going to any of those Cost Stores so-called, and let me give you a memorandum of Cost prices.

Most of my large stock I will sell at cost but I have; goods that I will not sell in that way, and neither will those merchants who make such a flourish about selling at Cost.

No merchant in this place has purchased his Goods any cheaper than I bought mine. Any assertion to the contrary is false; and I will guarantee to sell Goods as low as any Cost House. All I ask is an opportunity to prove the truthfulness of this assertion.

THE SENTINEL.

WM. S. PEAL, / SEATON GALES, \ Editors.

Friday Evening, Feb. 22, 1867.

The Militia.

We observe a proposition before the Legislature to rescind the Militia law contained in the Revised Code. One would think, there is quite enough of necessary business before the Legislature, without seeking new business to engage its time at this late period. Besides, until Congress abolishes the existing State governments, which it certainly has no Constitutional right to do, it is poorly worth our while to invite its rapacity by abolishing an essential feature in their organization.

The action of the Congress in regard to the Southern States, may render our Militia laws and organizations unnecessary and void or in other words suspend them, for a time, yet they are by no means hostile to the government or to the Constitution of the United States, nor does any one that we are aware desire the organization of the militia for any unlawful or improper object, but simply to keep up what must be admitted to be, the full apparatus of a republican form of government under the Constitution of the United States. The assumption on the part of Congress, that the Southern States are without a republican form of government, must be regarded as a mere assumption for partizan purposes. No man can show that North Carolina has ever had any other than a republican form of government, except when she has been subjected to military rule without her consent. So long as that exists, of course her republican form of government is suspended, and so long as Congress claims the right to control the State and to propose or prescribe forms of government for the State, so long her republican form of government will be suspended, perhaps, forever. The Constitution obliges the Federal Government to guarntee to the States republican forms of government, i. e. the whole power of the government is pledged in the most solemn manner, to prevent any power whatever as well as the States themselves, from fixing or forcing upon the people of the States any other than a republican form of government, but it no where empowers Congress to give or prescribe or force upon the people of the States any form of government whatever, but it holds the people bound to make and preserve for themselves a republican form of government. This the Sherman bill professes to permit the people of the South to do, but so trammels the people by its provisions as to prevent the exercise of their rights as citizens of the States. And this is what every reconstruction bill which Congress has proposed, has done.

If the object of the friends of this proposition is simply to avoid the expense of keeping up the organization, this can better be done by the suspension of the office of Adjutant General until such an office is needed. We hope, however, when the Legislature determines to do this, it will first be just to the present incumbent of that office, by paying him for the immense labor he has already performed in re-organizing the Militia. When the Legislature of North Carolina arrives at that pitch, that it refuses to pay her legally appointed officers a full and proper remuneration for their services, it will be proper for the State to close business, and place herself under the management of another power other than her own people.

The Legislature on Thursday last appropriated $1,500 for decorating a soldier's grave yard near Raleigh.— West. Democrat.

The above is calculated to mislead. There must be a general desire felt that the soldiers who fell, or who died from disease, and were hastily buried, without regard to place or manner in either the late Confederate or Federal armies, should be gathered in one spot and decently buried, and their graves so marked as to indicate to friends where they lie. It appears to us that civilization, humanity, propriety and religion would demand this. These considerations prompted the ladies of Raleigh to procure a fit place where to congregate the late Confederate dead. And this has been rendered necessary by the determination of the U. S. government to establish a National Cemetery here, where all the Federal soldiers who have fallen or died in this State, should likewise be congregated in one place. There is certainly no wrong in this, but it indicates the right spirit.

This task has been committed to Col. Stubbs, Chief Quartermaster, who is now having the Federal dead removed from Kinston, Goldsboro' and other places to this place.

During the war a number of the Confederate dead were buried near the Rock Quarry, a place which the Federal authorities afterwards thought to be a fit place to locate the cemetery for the Federal dead. Knowing that the Ladies of the Memorial Association had been presented a suitable ground for their cemetery and that they had had it prepared for the reception of their dead, the Federal authorities notified them that the Confederate dead must be removed at an early day, in order that the arrangements necessary for completing the National cemetery and the removal of the Federal dead, as soon as possible. This involved the necessity for a larger amount of funds than they could command at once. Nearly five hundred bodies could not be removed, graves dug, and decent burial given them, at once, at any small expense, and hence the necessity for the appeal to the Legislature, not to decorate the cemetery as we understand it, but to enable them to remove and decently bury the 8 or 900 bodies of the Confederate dead, nearly 500 of which must be removed in a short time.

Among the late Confederate soldiers, nearly every county in the State is represented by the dead here; hence, under the circumstances, the propriety of Legislative aid. As to any decorations of the Cemetery, we pledge the ladies of the State and of this city, to do all that will be done, by their own efforts, and not from any monies contributed by the Legislature.

Minerals of Cabarrus.

We requested friends in different parts of the State to furnish us detailed accounts of the various gold, copper, iron and coal mines in this State. An esteemed friend in Cabarrus has sent us the following. We hope it will be followed up:

"This county has been noted for the past thirty years for its gold producing veins, its rich placer diggings, and the large nuggets that have been found from time to time, varying in size from one pennyweight to twenty-seven pounds.

But from the excitement of 1849, when so great a rush was made to California, these mines have remained neglected and unwrought, although before that period, the vast majority of gold coined at the mint of our State, was raised or washed from the sands of this section.—A careful survey, and observation of the geological formation, must satisfy the scientific and practical man, of the vast store of wealth that still lays hidden in the bosom of the veins of this county.

It is a well established fact, that all true fissure veins are found in the azoic and silurean series of rocks, for during this period of the earth's formation, occurred the great oscillations that raised the silurean slates from their once horizontal position, to their now present one, (being at an angle, from the vertical, of only 10 to 15 degrees.) It is in the metamorphic, talcose and blue clay slates, that we find the veins coming to the surface, their matrix carrying gold varying from twenty to three hundred dollars per ton. As these hills were at one period of time much higher than at present, their tops having been ground off by the immense glaziers that swept over the whole country, the tops of the veins were ground up, and the gold set free, been deposited in the sands on the hill sides, and washed into the many streams, whose prolific yield has given its golden harvest to the thousands who have wrought them.

The veins have been as yet but little wrought; pits for miles have been sunk to the depth of twenty and thirty feet, but as soon as the water made its appearance, these holes have been abandoned.

The formation of these veins, at the surface down to the level, is quartz and oxidised earth —from water level the sulphurettes of iron (these are rich in gold) and will hold for a considerable depth, when unquestionably sulphurettes of copper will come in, and it will be at this point, these mines will yield their fortunes.

No mines can be worked with a greater advantage. Within a few miles of a Railroad—fuel most abundant, and labor at one dollar per day, we feel sure that Cabarrus county will send immense amounts of copper to market within the next five years." McE.

Railroad Meeting at Trinity College.

The citizens of Trinity College and vicinity met at the College, Feb. 16, to take into consideration the proposed Railroad from the Coal Fields to Mt. Airy. James Leach was appointed President, and B. Craven, Secretary of the meeting. After a full discussion, a committee that had been appointed for that purpose, reported the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the proposed road is of the greatest importance to this section of the State, and that we will not only favor it by all proper means, but will aid in furnishing the money to build it to the utmost of our ability.

2. We are satisfied, that by far the best route is by way of the Factories, Trinity College, High Point and Salem. From Deep River to Salem, 55 miles, it will not be necessary to cross any streams of consequence, not a single bridge to be built, and the grading will cost less perhaps, than the same distance in any other section of the State.

3. By this route the road will pass through a section abounding in valuable freights throughout, and will be on or near the "old Fayetteville Road," the line of all the mountain travel for the last hundred years, and no other route can have so many important points, and so many controlling lines of travel and trade.

4. This route would not only develope and be supported by the unequalled water power of Deep River, capable of running millions of spindles, and an incalculable amount of machinery of every kind; but would pass centrally through a section abounding in valuable metals. Within a radius of ten miles from Trinity are inexhaustible quantities of copper, gold, iron and lead.

Resolved, That the Secretary be requested to correspond with the President of the Western Road, and to take such steps as may be necessary to have the merits of this route duly represented.

Resolved, That these proceedings be published in the Raleigh, Fayetteville and Wilmington papers

Masonry and Women.

The local of the Norfolk Journal is responsible for the following story. Whether he gets it from the written history or the traditions of Masonry, or from his own fancy, we leave the reader to judge.

WHY WOMEN CANNOT ENTER MASONIC LODGES.—When King Solomon was still a young man he had married his seventh wife. She was a beautiful young Ammonitess, with locks as black as a raven's wing and eyes as bright as eagle's. It was believed that she was the favorite fair one among all the sultanas of the great King; for his affections were not divided then as they afterwards became. She knew her power, and used it unsparingly. In addition to her other qualities, she was as inquisitive as ever was a woman on this earth.

One evening King Solomon attended lodge on some grand occasion, and stayed out somewhat late. When he returned home, he found the fair Ammonitess in the dumps, and pouting just like the fair wives of Masons do sometimes now, when their lords stay out too late at the Lodge. She upbraided him with neglecting her, insinuated that he hadn't been to the lodge as he pretended, and insisted that in future he should give proof that he went there by having herself initiated, so that she might go there and watch him.

"Daughter of Ammon," replied the King, "thou hast behaved thyself as one of the foolish women, in presuming to question thy lord and master. Thou art not so angry with me as thou pretendest to be; for the true reason of this behavior is thy insatiable curiosity, in which thou excellest Eve herself. Know then that I here ordain that neither thou, nor any of thy inquisitive sex after thee, ever enter the portals of a Masonic Lodge; but I shall enjoin the Tyler to pierce through with his drawn sword any woman that shall attempt to enter a lodge; aye, even thee, Queen of Israel though thou be!" And that ordinance of this wisest of monarchs has continued in force till this day.

We hope, that we have satisfied the curiosity of our fair readers as fully as did King Solomon that of his Queen.

ARRIVAL OF TROOPS.—The Baltimore steamer, Tuesday, brought down ninety cavalrymen and forty-five horses to go to North Carolina.

For the Sentinel.

On some of the Good, and some of the Bad effects that may result from the present Scarcity of Money.

The present time is certainly a season of pecuniary embarrassment and distress. The golden age is past away, and the iron one is come with a vengeance—and we are all feeling its weight. Some persons regard this state of things with sorrow and dismay, others believe that it has been ordered by a gracious Providence for the wisest ends—which it becomes us to consider and promote.

Let us consider a few of the probable ends that are designed by this state of things.

In the first place, the scarcity of money will very naturally make men frugal. All are now satisfied that they have been too extravagant in their expenses, during the period of prosperity. They have been lovers of pleasure, and have made the most lavish offerings at her shrine; and, in fact, while their coffers were full, there was no great occasion for economy. But now there is an entire change in their affairs; and Fortune, after showing a thousand caprices, has fairly broken the wheel before their eyes, and, of course, they will be compelled to learn to be frugal.

Again, the same cause will also make men industrious. Mere economy, however judicious, will hardly be sufficient to repair the terrible losses that have been experienced. Our people generally will feel themselves obliged to pursue some honest calling for their support. And what is of great importance too, they will learn to rest satisfied with moderate gains. The time is evidently gone by, when they could easily make an abundant living, and many of them amass large fortunes, by the means then in their power. Nothing now but a course of persevering industry and a train of honest efforts will enable them to secure a decent competency for themselves and families. They will accordingly learn to be industrious as well as frugal, once more; the pressure of the times will probably make men more moral in many respects. In particular, by the great change in the condition of things, they will be obliged to deal less in speculation and credit than formerly, and will, of course, commit less fraud in business. Besides this, they will be forced to abstain from some licentious pleasures, merely for the want of means to indulge them—for such things are generally very costly. It is true, that in the actual state of human nature, they will part with these "innocent amusements" very slowly and reluctantly; but they will resign them at last.—And at the same time, as they are obliged to retire from the haunts of vice and the circles of fashion, they will insensibly acquire a relish for the pure pleasures of domestic life, which are always friendly to virtue,—and then we may sing with Shakspeare—

"Sweet are the uses of adversity."

On the other hand, let us look at one or two of the bad effects that may be feared.

In the first place, it is a time of danger to all those who are destitute of the powerful control of moral and religious principle. As the pressure of pecuniary embarrassment rests heavily upon us, and is rather increasing than diminishing—at least with many—the temptation to do what ought not to be done for relief, gathers strength. There are a thousand ways of taking advantage, and avoiding the claims of justice which lie open to a man in embarrassment: and often it requires principles of the staunchest integrity to keep him in the straight path of true virtue. This remark applies with vast force to a community in which poverty has been so long regarded as a disgrace, and the principal distinction in society arises from wealth. It often happens that the opprobium of poverty is the very object of horror; and while the man is appalled by its approach, he does that which virtue and conscience forbid. Hence the necessity of a higher principle than mere regard to reputation. And hence, the expediency of establishing in practice, other distinctions than those which exist between rich and poor.

Again: this is a time of great danger to men who, without any fixed principles and confirmed habits, have experienced a decline of business and want of full occupation. Men are never more exposed to the ruinous consequences of dissipation, than when in the circumstances just mentioned. Uneasy and restless—often without the resources of learning, and any love for literary pursuit—they seek, in the various modes of dissipation, relief from the intolerable feelings produced by the want of that interest which is created by the active pursuits of honest industry. Hence, there is great reason to apprehend that the more decent sort of people will indulge in secret intemperance; and that others will frequent grog-shops and tipplinghouses, will engage in petty cock fighting, and in various kinds of low and ruinous gambling. The uneducated and irreligious poor are in very great danger in times like the present. Already have we heard, with deep concern—though we are not surprised at it—that drunkenness and dissipation are on the increase among us.

While we make these remarks, we do think it due to our poor afflicted people, to say, that they have borne the terrible revulsion that has taken place, on the whole, very well. True, we hear of thefts, robberies and other acts of criminality more frequently than in better times.—The wonder is, that with the thousands of idle, thriftless creatures let loose upon society who were free, contented and happy under law and government, these acts of violation of law and order are not greatly multiplied. In this light, we believe now more than we ever did, that the great mass of our people are sound at the core; and we trust that the hope of bettering their condition, which is offered by the boundless resources of our State, will sustain them in this time of trial, and bear them through it with honor.

Our closing remarks. No man is in a condition to resist temptation, who has not some worthy object before him; who is not, without lively interest, engaged in a laudable pursuit. Let there be no idlers at such a time as this. What is a man's principles worth who can see friends and relations toiling day and night for a competent support, and demean himself by living upon them, and "eating the bread of idleness." It is a great pity the divine law could not be literally carried out. "If any man will not work, neither shall he eat."

THE SENTINEL.

Friday Evening, Feb. 22, 1867.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

To the Young, Middle-aged and Old Men of Wake.

We are requested to state, that on Monday and Tuesday next, and longer if necessary, the ladies of the Memorial Association design to remove the bodies of the late Confederate soldiers from the grounds near the Rock Quarry, soon to be occupied as the National Cemetery for the reception of the Federal dead. The ladies beg the assistance of the gentlemen of Wake in effecting that object, in any way by which they can render the assistance desired. Gentlemen who cannot personally attend, who are able, can assist very much by hiring a hand or two, or sending a waggon or cart. We hope the work will be done at once.

DITSON'S MUSIC.—We are indebted to Oliver Ditson & Co., Boston, for the following pieces of new music: Thoughts at Twilight, Napoleon to Josephine, The Bridge, Nimblefoot Schottish, Father, dear father, come home with the stamps.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATIONS.—The public will not fail to notice the proclamations of the Governor, for the arrest of J. Q. Bryant and Peter Lane, charged with murder.

We were glad to see Hon. David Outlaw, in his seat in the Senate to-day. He appears to be in improved health.

Through the efforts of Mrs. F. C. Roberts and Miss Harriet Lane, of Newbern, four hundred and forty dollars have been collected in Newbern and forwarded for the relief of the family of Ex President Davis. Their condition, it is understood, requires relief, and it is important that relief should be afforded.

The Legislature of Alabama, we learn, has endorsed, and recommended to the schools in that State, the series of school books issued by Messrs. Sterling & Co., at Greensboro, in this State. They are also extensively used in this State and Virginia.

COTTON.—The Tarboro Southerner says, that the books of the tax collectors in Edgecombe show that 11,000 bales have been shipped already, and it is estimated that at least 4000 bales still remain in the hands of the planters.

COUNTERFEIT.—The Wilmington Dispatch says a new and dangerous counterfeit five dollar National Bank note has recently been put afloat, which is well executed and likely to deceive. In the genuine, the group of Columbus is composed of five, in the counterfeit there are but four—the one in the background at the extreme and most extreme figure in the group is missing. In the counterfeit, also, the extended arm of Columbus is without a hand. Bills of this description on five different banks have already appeared.

The Goldsboro' News says: Several thousand bushels of corn passed over the Wilmington and Weldon Road yesterday for the destitute of South Carolina.

The Tarboro Southerner says, that large numbers of Freedmen are being induced to come to Edgecombe, on hearing of the high prices paid for all kinds of labor, and if we shall be able to keep this class under proper control, and even succeed in getting a fair amount of work out of them, there can be no doubt that the profits arising from the farming operations will be much greater this year than has ever been realized before, even in the palmiest days of our regular organized slave labor.

THE FREQUENT occurrence of fires, in cotton warehouses, in the city of New York, has caused investigations to be made by the Insurance Companies, resulting in an exposure of fraud which is truly startling.

A Southern Editor's Reminscences.

The Memphis Avalanche indulges in the following bit of sentiment:

"Late at night, when the fire and lamps burn low and dim, we lay down No. 10,039 vol. LXVIII, of the National Intelligencer, and lean back to think, overcome by the many memories which that familiar caption calls up. We have read it constantly for thirty-two years, minus the four bitter years of civil war, and had the good fortune to know its old editors, Joe Gales and Wm. W. Seaton, both great and good men, now numbered with the dead, but of immortal memory.

"Not only of these princely gentlemen does the Intelligencer remind us, but of many, many another whom we were fortunate in knowing, and whom the country has lost.—Webster and Clay and Crittenden; Dawson, the 'Commodore,' of Georgia, peerless at the dinner table; Rusk and Houston and Floyd, kindest-hearted of all living men; that noble gentleman, Butler, of South Carolina, Prentiss, worthy to be called Chrysostom, golden-mouthed, and not only beyond comparison the most eloquent, but the most genial and generous of men; large-hearted Tom Corwin; Keith, gallant and good; Badger, wise beyond other men, of admirable wit and always enamored of the truth; Severir and Douglas, Clemens and Ruilman, with many a dear old familiar face, of others less known to fame and even more beloved, crowd around us as we write; the dead mingling with the living: Porter of the Spirit, and Iuman the artist, and glorious John Brougham, and Alexander Dimitry, large souled as one of Homer's heroes and wise as Plato; Breckenridge and Bonham, Boyce and Robert Johnson, four men of like princely natures; all these and many like these we met at Washington in the better times, when the Senate of the United States sat in the old Chamber, and that city was the capital of both Northern and the Southern States.

"Eheu, fugaces! how the years drift away and we become garrulous, and forget that the long list of names, and the memories they call up, of "the reflections of the gods' and times gone never to return, and scenes already dim as they recede into the past, have interest for no one but ourself! Nevertheless, it is written, it is a cry from the heart. Let it stand. Thank God, neither power nor malice can confiscate and sell for coin to knaves, the unhappy or the sad mementoes of the past."

Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.

In the House the bill authorizing a sub-marine bridge at St. Louis, passed.

The bill retiring compound interest notes of which $140,000,000 will fall due this year, was taken up. An amendment authorizing $100,000,000 in legal tenders, passed 99 to 59.

Another section prohibits the retiring of four millions per month during the present year. The House then voted on the bill, defeating it by a vote of 75 to 84.

The vote was reconsidered and the bill was referred to a committee, who reported immediately with a section forbidding the retiring of four millions per month, and the bill passed 95 to 65.

The bill authorizes the issue of a hundred millions of legal tenders to redeem the compound interest notes.

In the Senate, the Railroad committee was discharged from the consideration of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

The Judiciary committee reported a bill providing that where property was confiscated by the Confederate authorities, the former owner may make proof before any Federal Court, and a commissioner shall be appointed by the commander of the district, wherein the confiscated lands lies. The commander shall place the claimant in possession on presentation of the commissioners or Judges certified decision, and shall protect the claimants possession.

The Senate then held an executive session, among the confirmations are John Read and William E. Bond, Tax collectors for North Carolina.

WE OFFER TO THE PUBLIC THIS CELEBRATed Oil, and in doing so we unhesitatingly pronounce it SUPERIOR TO ANY BURNING OIL IN USE. It is Non-Explosive. Free from Grease. It will not grease the hands. It will not soil or grease the clothing. It is more brilliant than Gas. It produces a soft and beautiful light. It is not so trying to the eyes. It can be used in any Kerosene Lamp by adopting our LIGHT HOUSE OR RATCHET BURNERS.

It has been most favorably received, and pronounced by judges to be the

THE BEST AND MOST RELIABLE OIL

now in the market; and in consequence of the many serious accidents arising from the EXPLOSION OF KEROSENE, this Oil is extensively known and used in preference.

We are now prepared to furnish the trade with this valuable Oil, and we solicit from the public an examination and trial.

We have on hand a large stock of

LAMPS, BURNERS, CHIMNEYS, WICKS, &c.,

and can supply the trade on liberal terms.

Delaware River Chemical Works,

PHILADELPHIA, U. S. A.

This old established MANURE is manufactured from Bones that have not been burned or steamed, and it contains all their original organic matter. It is active in its operation, and is a fertilizer of great durability. It does not exhaust the soil like Peruvian Guano but on the contrary permanently improves it.

Previous to 1861 it was introduced into the Southern States to considerable extent, and again in 1865, where it has been used with remarkable success upon Cotton, Corn, Tobacco, and all Crops.

A trial will convince any planter of its merits.—Pamphlets containing well-known Southern evidence furnished upon application to New York or Philadelphia offices.

FERTILIZERS FOR SPRING CROPS.

WE beg to inform the trade and planters of North Carolina and Virginia, that we are prepared to furnish them with the most approved FERTILIZERS, on the most accommodating terms. We will have a stock of genuine PERUVIAN GUANO, purchased direct from the Agent of the Peruvian Government.

We have now in store, for immediate delivery, 225 tons BRADLEY'S SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME, which won for itself such an enviable reputation in the Cotton and Tobacco counties of North Carolina and Virginia, last season, proving itself equal, and in many important respects, superior to the Peruvian Guano. We give an analysis of it as ascertained by Dr. Hayes, one of the most eminent C emists in the country:

Results of Analyses Made of Bradley's Patent Super-Phosphate of Lime, as now sold by Wm. L. Bradley.

100 Parts Consist of
Moisture	5.30
Prepared animal matter, salts of Ammonia, fatty substances and Humus	38.50
Bone Phosphates of Lime, Magnesia and Iron	35.80
(soluble Phosphates of do. 16 6-10.)
Sulphate of Lime	16.50
Salts	20
Insoluble	2.60
	99.90

The animal matter afforded 4 2-10 parts of Ammonia when it was decomposed, and, as will be seen, nearly one-half of the Bone Phosphate is soluble.

After many analyses of your Super-Phosphate of Lime, made during the last few months, I have found your standard of quality full equal to that of any you have ever sold in former years; and I am satisfied that you incinde the correct principles in the manufacture. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D., State Assayer.

We refer to the following gentlemen who tested its merits last season:

LIFE INSURANCE.

MANY insure their lives because they see the folly of neglecting to do so. Many who do not insure argue that it is folly to insure. Which is right? If those who do not insure can cite instances of the harm done by a policy of life Insurance, if they can point out men who have lost $5,000 to $100,000 by Life Insurance, then upon proof of same, we must believe them. Hundreds of instances can readily be shown where parties have been benefitted to this extent.—In North Carolina there are some Widows and Children ready to testify to the good resulting from a life Insurance on their only earthly dependence.

The "Ætna Life Co., in loosing $23,000 the past year has relieved want—and now with over $4,000,000 of assets—offers sure protection to all those who will avail themselves of her liberal terms, by calling on 1867. "THE WORLD" 1867.

THE ATTENTION OF THE PUBLIC IS INVITED to the claims of "THE WORLD" as one of the leading public journals of the country. It is the chief organ of the Democratic Party of the United States, and the foremost advocate of the immediate restoration of the Union. Its highest merit consists in its character as An enterprising and Trustworthy Newspaper.

The next year bids fair to be a more critical one in the history of our free institutions, than even any of the eventful ones that have preceded it. The first requisite for an intelligent judgment of public affairs is a full and authentic account of facts as they transpire. These The World always aims to give with conscientious accuracy, and with equal fullness and fidelity, whether they make for or against its own views of public policy. Prompt activity in spreading before its readers every kind of news in which any part of the public takes an interest, is the first duty of a newspaper, and the facilities of The World for discharging this obligation are unsurpassed by those of any journal in the United States. Whatever else may fail in, it certainly will not fail to furnish the news, nor to supply it with such promptitude, spirit, freshness, abundance, variety, accuracy, and candor, that no class of readers can miss anything of interest which they wish to find. The World will publish documents and arguments prepared by political friends just as freely as those prepared by political friends, making its own comments on them, of course, but never suppressing or garbling them because they are calculated to damage its own party. Adverse arguments which it cannot refute, it is content to leave to make their full impression. The World adopts this rule because it believes no other is honest; because it conceives that its first duty to its readers is to keep them thoroughly informed on every passing subject of importance.
